25th Anniversary of The Mosaic Project

On behalf of the state of California, I am pleased to welcome all who have gathered to celebrate the 25th anniversary of The Mosaic Project.

Since its founding in 2000, The Mosaic Project has remained committed to instilling the values of compassion, mutual respect, and inclusivity in our state's young people. From bringing together diverse groups of students through the Outdoor Project to offering parent and teacher trainings, The Mosaic Project is helping to build healthier and more connected school communities. With over 90,000 individuals served, the organization's impact has proven to be both far-reaching and long-lasting. I am grateful that the Golden State is home to organizations like The Mosaic Project that are striving to create a more peaceful world for future generations.

As we celebrate this milestone, I wish The Mosaic Project a future just as bright as these past 25 years.

Sincerely,
